“The importance of eco incentives for SSS and the maritime sector including the necessity to revise the current guidelines on state aid in the maritime sector”

Under the ESN Italian Presidency 2022

The European Shortsea Network is currently organizing the webinar “The importance of eco incentives for SSS and the maritime sector including the necessity to revise the current guidelines on state aid in the maritime sector” which will take place in the framework of the 2022 Italian Presidency of the European Short Sea Network (ESN). The event will be an opportunity to present the first draft proposal of the ESN position paper “SSS 2027- Challenges and opportunities” and to exchange views and best practices on the importance of developing multimodal eco-incentive schemes for SSS, discussing important issues such as the need to revise the current framework defined by the European Commissions’ guidelines on state aid to maritime transport.
